

Brand identity

The Version One identity as it exists in the live site and repository: mark, wordmark, colour, type, voice, imagery, and the surfaces that carry one operator's property shopfront into the world.

Version 1

Issued 22 September 2026

Prepared by Jewell Projects

This document consolidates an identity that already exists. It does not invent one. Every item is traceable to a file in the live build, or marked as open so the gap is visible.

CONFIRMED Established in the live site or repository. Use as documented.

PROPOSED Drawn from how the site behaves, shown for sign-off. Not a standard until agreed.

TO BE CONFIRMED Not yet established. Listed in the open register.

One team, one place to talk

RealDistrict is a marketplace for land and commercial property for sale, run by one team. People browse and shortlist on the site, ask about a property in one conversation that stays with that property, and arrange to see it in the same place. It does not compete on inventory or reach; it competes on being straight with people about what is real, what is known and what happens next.

PURPOSE

Find your next place.

The promise on the homepage, the footer and the tab. CONFIRMED

MISSION

Discover a home, understand the essentials and get a useful response from the person managing it.

docs/01, the product brief. CONFIRMED

VISION

No vision statement is published on the site or recorded in the repository.

Open item B-01. TO BE CONFIRMED

Three things the site already promises

These are not values on a poster. They are the product invariants the code enforces (AGENTS.md), written the way the site says them on How it works (<https://porli.clemt.workers.dev/how-it-works>).

One conversation per property

However many times a customer writes about a property, it is one thread, and the team answers in it. Private team notes are separate records and never reach the customer.

A request is not a booking

An inspection is requested by the customer and confirmed by the team, who check the slot and the property at that moment. The state change is visible to the customer.

Say what is real

A fictional listing says so on its card and its page. A real property's photographs are labelled as supplied by the property. A price, room count or area that is not known is stated as to be confirmed, never invented.

PERSONALITY

Clear

Warm

Concise

Plain

Restrained

Straight

docs/03: "Clear, warm and concise." CONFIRMED

NEVER

A luxury brand, a portal, or a lifestyle magazine. No superlatives, no exaggerated promises, no generic luxury language, no invented facts. The guardrails in docs/23 say it in one line: no luxury language.

CONFIRMED

Audience. Buyers and investors comparing homes and commercial property, saving options, asking questions and arranging viewings; and the team that lists, answers and confirms. Renters are not an audience: renting was removed (docs/19). The first release is one organisation's shopfront, not a multi-agent portal (D004).

The shopfront, not the portal

Property portals are built to hold every listing from every agent; the presentation is the agent's and the conversation happens somewhere else. RealDistrict is one operator's shopfront. The presentation is careful because there is one team behind it, and the conversation stays on the site because that team is the one who answers.

Find

Land and commercial, open to everyone without an account. Filters live in the address bar so a search can be shared. Saving needs an account, so a shortlist follows the person.

Ask

Every listing has an enquiry form. Sending it opens the one conversation for that property. Replies land in the customer's account; nothing is emailed.

Visit

From the listing or the conversation, choose one of the team's times or suggest another. The team confirms it, and the record changes from requested to confirmed.

What is real today

One real property is on the site: GrandBlue Resort & Beachclub, Mae Phim Beach, Thailand, shown in photographs supplied by the property with its price, room count and areas stated as to be confirmed (docs/18). Every other listing is a labelled fictional concept with generated imagery. The plan on a page (docs/21) sets the north star as one real property sold through the site.

CONFIRMED

Both halves are load-bearing. The brand is only credible if the fictional listings are labelled as plainly as the real one is presented. Publishing the careful presentation without the labels would turn a shopfront into a brochure.

Four blocks, the right column rounded

The mark is abstract, not a letter: two olive squares on the left, a pale quarter-round top right, an olive quarter-round bottom right with a pale tail tucked under its curve. The gaps between the blocks are open, so the ground shows through and the mark needs no background of its own. Traced from artwork Clent supplied (docs/44, D039).

Construction

On a 100-unit square: blocks 47.1 wide with a 5.8 gap; the left column splits at 49.3 and 55.1, the right at 43.5 and 49.3, so the right column sits a little higher. Top-right radius 43.5, bottom-right corner radius 47.1, tail 10.9 wide following the curve at a 5.8 offset. CONFIRMED

Colour

On paper, olive and accent. On deep olive, white and a mid green (#8fa899). On a tile, paper and mid green on deep olive. Two greens, never a third colour, never a gradient. CONFIRMED

Source

`design/realdistrict-mark.svg`, published here as the mark and the tile. A vector, so it prints. It is a trace of a raster; if a vector original exists it should replace the source. TO BE CONFIRMED

Lock-ups

Three settings are live: the header lock-up at 36px with the mark at 0.84 of the name and a 0.3em gap; the footer opens on the mark alone at 44px; the sign-off sets the name across the page measure at 97.5% fill (docs/46, docs/53). CONFIRMED

Clear space and minimum size

Clear space: at least a quarter of the mark's width on every side. Stated in docs/47; never drawn as a diagram and never signed off as a standard.

PROPOSED

Minimum size: 16px. Measured: the favicon reads at 16px on light and dark tab bars (docs/44).

Because the mark is abstract there is no letter to lose; the floor is where the tail disappears.

CONFIRMED

Incorrect usage

- Do not rotate or mirror it.
- Do not separate or rearrange the four blocks.
- Do not set it in one colour on paper: the pale block is the mark's second colour, not a tint to drop.
- Do not outline it or add a stroke.
- Do not recolour it outside the two greens, or give it a gradient or shadow.
- Do not place it on a photograph without a calm area behind it.

No misuse rules were recorded before this document; the six above are the failure modes a two-tone abstract mark is most exposed to. PROPOSED

Monogram and symbol

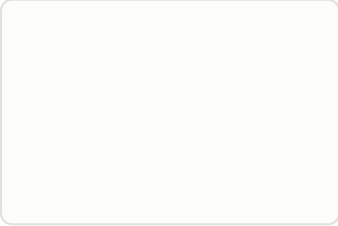

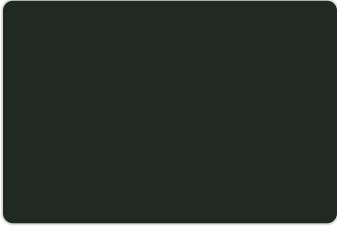

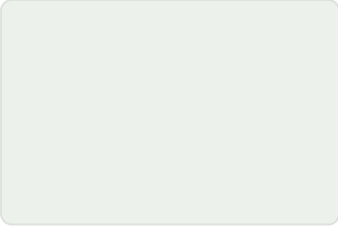

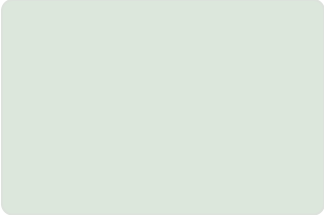

There is none, and none is proposed. The mark is already the smallest form: it is the favicon, the tile and the footer sign. A lettermark was tried and rejected in the rounds before the mark was chosen (docs/42), because R-and-D forms read as B or P at small sizes. CONFIRMED

The mark in the world

Digital only. No sign, card, letterhead or packaging carries the mark; no physical application exists to audit. TO BE CONFIRMED

Ivory and olive

Nine tokens, all in `public/experience.css` under `:root`. A warm near-white ground, a deep green for the mark and controls, a deeper green for the footer, two pale tints, a hairline, a secondary text colour and one warm accent for focus and warnings. Contrast figures are WCAG 2 ratios computed for the exact pairs the site uses; the site does not claim conformance from them (docs/03).

Paper #fcfcfa Page ground	Ink #202924 Text · 14.6:1 on paper	Olive #244d3e Mark, buttons, accents · 9.3:1 on paper · white on it 9.5:1	Deep #173c2e Footer ground · white on it 12.2:1

Pale #edf1eb Tinted panels · olive on it 8.3:1	Accent #dce7dc The mark's second green · ink on it 11.8:1	Line #dde2dc Rules and borders	Muted #657068 Secondary text · 5.0:1 on paper

Clay #91432f Focus rings and warnings · 6.7:1 on paper

Balance. Paper carries almost every layout. Olive is for the mark, primary buttons and the eyebrow labels; deep olive appears once per page, as the footer ground, and never as a theme. Pale and accent are for tinted bands and cards, never for large fields. Clay is an accent for focus rings and warnings, not decoration, and colour is never the only signal of a property's status: every status also has a word.

CONFIRMED

No dark theme

The footer's deep ground with white type is the one inversion. There is no dark mode and none is planned. CONFIRMED

Print and Pantone

No print equivalents are specified. Needed before any printed application. TO BE CONFIRMED

Two palettes in the record. docs/03 still lists the original proposal (ivory #F7F4EC, olive #485A42, clay #A6533E); the tokens above are what the site has shipped since the editorial redesign. The live tokens are the standard; the proposal is history. Reconciling docs/03 is open item B-08. TO BE CONFIRMED

One sans, one display serif

The interface sans is the system's own: Segoe UI Variable, then Segoe UI, Arial and the platform sans. The display serif is EB Garamond, self-hosted under the SIL Open Font Licence as Porli Serif, latin subset only (docs/30). No third-party font service is ever loaded; the Content Security Policy forbids it.

SUBHEADING

Replies land in your account

BODY

Every listing has an enquiry form. What you write goes to the team member who manages that property, and it opens a conversation you can find any time under your account.

EYEBROWCOMMON QUESTIONS

Rule of thumb. Garamond for what a reader is meant to weigh; the sans for what they are meant to do. Weight and spacing carry the hierarchy; no italics for emphasis, no exaggerated tracking. CONFIRMED

The wordmark

The name is set in the sans, “Real” at text weight and “District” at 750, tracked −2% (D040). The artwork’s geometric face was not adopted: one typeface and no third-party fonts are guardrails, so licensing it would be a separate decision.

TO BE CONFIRMED

Fallbacks

On a platform without Segoe UI Variable the sans falls to Arial or the system face and the wordmark’s 750 snaps to bold; the relationship holds, the proportions shift a little. The serif has a `local(Georgia)` fallback while the file loads.

CONFIRMED

Plain, warm, and honest about what is real

British English. Short sentences that say what happens. The site tells people what it does and does not do in the same tone, and a limitation is stated in the interface rather than hidden: “No email is sent.”, “This is a request.”

Reference lines

Live on the site. Use them verbatim; they are the calibration set for anything new.

DO

- State what happens and when: “The team confirms it, and you see the confirmation under Inspections.”
- Name the limitation in the sentence: “No email is sent.”
- Say what is fictional, on the thing itself.

DON'T

- No luxury language: no “exclusive”, “prestigious”, “bespoke”, “world-class”.
- No invented facts: no price, room count or area that the property has not supplied.
- No testimonials, response-time promises or inventory totals that nothing backs

- Use the first person plural for the team: “we write it, we answer for it and we show it.”
- Prefer the plain word: home, place, team, price to be confirmed.

(content/site-copy.md).

- No urgency or scarcity.
- No American spelling.

SURFACE	REGISTER	EXAMPLE
Homepage and editorial	Serif headline, one plain sentence beneath it.	“Land and commercial property, with one team to talk to.”
Listing	Facts first, labelled; the enquiry and the visit as two calm actions.	“Photographs supplied by the property.”
Forms and account	Procedural. Say what a field is for and what happens next.	“Changing it signs out your other devices.”
Workspace	Quiet and operational. Counts are named precisely (docs/08).	“Waiting for a conversation.”
Empty and error states	Warm, never blaming, always with a way on.	“A little room for possibilities. Tap the heart on a home to keep it here.”

Natural light, believable scale

Natural light, straight architectural verticals, tactile materials, restrained grading and varied property types (docs/03). No sunsets on every card, no glossy renders, no generic drone shots. A generated image never stands in for a real listed property.

Two kinds of image, told apart

Generated concept studies

Architectural and land studies made through Higgsfield for the fictional listings, each recorded in `design/asset-register.json` with its prompt and generation id. Every one is labelled on its card, its page and in its alt text: “Generated concept image.” Higgsfield credits are exhausted; no new generated imagery is being made (docs/23). CONFIRMED

Photographs supplied by the property

GrandBlue’s six photographs, from the property’s public gallery, resized to 1536 × 1032 WebP, alt text ending “Photograph supplied by the property.” Written permission for their use is not yet on file.

TO BE CONFIRMED

Openly licensed photographs

Photographs of real places elsewhere, from Wikimedia Commons under CC0, CC BY or CC BY-SA, used to illustrate the fictional land listings (docs/61). Never presented as the parcel itself: the card says “Fictional listing · Licensed photograph”, the page says where the picture is from, the credit sits in the caption, and the alt text ends “Openly licensed photograph.” Each is in the register with photographer, source page and licence. CONFIRMED

Aerial view and site plan

A land listing has a section of its own for an aerial view and a site plan, one image each, after the floor-plan accordion on the reference listing page Clent sent (docs/61). The fictional land listings carry an illustrative plan drawn in code in the site-plan slot, marked “not a survey”, and, where an openly licensed aerial photograph of a comparable place exists, that photograph with its credit in the aerial slot; otherwise the slot stays empty and the page says so rather than hiding the row. CONFIRMED

Alt text convention

Every listing image’s alt text says what the picture shows and ends with which kind it is. The suffix is added by the server once, however many times the app starts (docs/27). CONFIRMED

Confirmed library

Fourteen images ship with the site, all in `public/assets/` and all in `design/asset-register.json` : eight generated concept studies for the fictional listings and six photographs supplied by GrandBlue, marked Supplied. Nothing else on the site is a picture; the How it works steps use screenshots of the site itself. CONFIRMED

One operator, one name

RealDistrict is standalone: not a sub-brand, not a house of brands, no parent named on the site. Its position is the shopfront (section 02): careful presentation, honest labels, one team who answers.

ITEM	STANDARD	STATUS
The name	RealDistrict , one word, capital R and capital D. “The RealDistrict team” for the people. Not “Real District”, not “RD”. (D033)	CONFIRMED
Product names	Land, Commercial, Saved homes, Messages, Inspections, Team workspace, Team login, How it works. Plain nouns, no coined names.	CONFIRMED
Working name	Porli was the working name until 21 September 2026 (docs/38). It survives in the address, the repository, the package and file names, and the dated records, on purpose.	CONFIRMED
Address	porli.cilent.workers.dev. The live address still carries the old name; a domain has not been attached.	TO BE CONFIRMED
Brand availability	Nobody has checked whether RealDistrict is available as a company name, domain or trade mark (D009). Nothing on the site claims it.	TO BE CONFIRMED
Trading entity	Who trades as RealDistrict is not decided (D013, docs/21).	TO BE CONFIRMED
Focus	Land replaced residential on 23 September 2026 (D054, docs/59); whether the first real business leads with land or commercial is still open (D013).	TO BE CONFIRMED

CONFIRMED

Physical and social

No business card, signboard, letterhead, email signature or social template exists. When one is needed, it takes the header lock-up on paper, the tile on dark stock, and the same labels as the site: a printed listing sheet says to be confirmed where the site does.

TO BE CONFIRMED

The quieter half

Five elements do most of the work between the mark and the words: labels, tags, buttons, cards and motion. All are in `public/styles.css` and `public/experience.css`.

ELEMENT	STANDARD	STATUS
Labels	Uppercase eyebrows at 11px, 7% tracking, 600, olive. The demo strip under the header on every page: “Includes fictional concept listings with generated imagery”.	CONFIRMED
Tags	Small bordered tags on paper: property type, Fictional, Featured; status badges Under offer, Sold, Withdrawn in words, never colour alone.	CONFIRMED
Buttons	Primary: olive ground, white text, 4px radius, 46px minimum height, an arrow icon that moves 3px on hover. Secondary: hairline border, ink text, pale on hover. Focus: 3px clay ring, 4px offset.	CONFIRMED
Cards and radii	Cards on white with a hairline or a soft shadow; radius 10px (14px for the large step and question cards), 6px for controls. Section rules were removed page by page in September (D036, D045): spacing separates, lines do not.	CONFIRMED
Icons	Inline SVG line icons, 24-unit grid, 1.5 stroke, round caps and joins, <code>currentColor</code> . Drawn in <code>app.js</code> ; no icon font, no third-party set.	CONFIRMED
Motion	Transform and opacity only; every animation is off under <code>prefers-reduced-motion</code> . Reveals rise 14px over 0.5s; the stacked step cards scale to 95% and veil as the next covers them (docs/49); the hero crossfades three photographs and shows only the first under reduced motion (docs/22).	CONFIRMED
Photograph frames	Listing and step screenshots sit in 10px-radius frames with a hairline; the How it works opener keeps its 4:3.	CONFIRMED

One measure, one rhythm

A single content measure, generous gutters, and a small set of breakpoints measured rather than assumed.

RULE	VALUE	WHERE
Measure	1370px maximum, so 1274px of content at 48px gutters	<code>.wrap</code> , experience.css
Gutters	48px; 35px at 1150px and below; 24px at 800px; 20px at 560px	<code>.wrap</code> media queries
Breakpoints	1150, 800, 560, 420, 375 and 359px. The last three exist for the header alone (docs/42): the account button drops its icon at 420, the wordmark steps at 420 and 375, the sector links give way at 359.	experience.css
Section rhythm	38px above and 46px below on informational pages; 65/74px on the homepage sections	<code>.how-section</code> , <code>.section</code>
Radius scale	4px buttons, 6px controls, 10px cards, 14px large cards, 22 units on the icon tile	styles.css, experience.css
Type scale	Body 16/1.6; headings clamp: h1 52–104px, h2 38–64px, section h2 34px; eyebrow 11px	styles.css
The sign-off	The name is sized from the measure: $(\text{viewport} - \text{gutters}) \div 5.4$, capped at 236px, centred, 97.5% fill so a scrollbar cannot push it past the edge (docs/53)	<code>.footer-sign</code>
Workspace	205px sidebar and a fluid body at 45px gap; sidebar becomes a row of links at 800px	<code>.workspace</code>

The stacked step cards on How it works are sticky only where a whole card fits, 801px wide and 700px tall; elsewhere they sit in a column so nothing is hidden under the fold (docs/49). CONFIRMED

What must never be shown or said

These are the rules Clent set at the handover (docs/23) and the product invariants in AGENTS.md. They are enforced in code where code can enforce them, and they hold for every surface, printed or on screen.

THE LABELS — CONFIRMED, VERBATIM

Fictional listing · Generated image

Photographs supplied by the property.

The first on every fictional card and page; the second on GrandBlue. Alt text ends “Generated concept image.” or “Photograph supplied by the property.” The header strip on every page: “Includes fictional concept listings with generated imagery”. CONFIRMED

RULE	WHAT IT MEANS IN PRACTICE	ENFORCED
Never invent a price, room count or area	A missing figure is stated as to be confirmed. GrandBlue's price, room count, land and floor area and sale terms are all to be confirmed with the property.	Copy and validation: a listing without a price must carry a price label (tests)
Fictional is labelled	Demo records and generated imagery are labelled fictional wherever they appear.	Card, page, alt text, header strip, terms page
Closed is not sold	A closed enquiry is never evidence of a completed transaction; publication state and transaction status are independent.	Data model and tests
Metrics count the entity	Numbers count people, property threads and homes, never interchangeable messages.	docs/08 and the dashboard tests
Private notes stay private	Internal notes are separate records and never reach customer responses, notifications or exports.	API and tests
No third-party scripts, styles or fonts	Content Security Policy: self only; Google Maps frames are the one exception, loaded on request.	Server headers; this document obeys the same rule
Motion is transform and opacity	And everything works under reduced motion.	CSS and the route walk
British English, one palette, no luxury language	Every string, including this document.	Review
Permission for photographs	GrandBlue's photographs are used with the client's authority as listing owner; written confirmation is to be filed before launch.	Open item B-04 — TO BE CONFIRMED

For counsel, not design. Nothing here is legal advice. Consumer-law obligations for property advertising in the launch region, the trading entity's disclosures, and the terms and privacy policy for a public launch are all open (docs/02, D007, D013). The privacy and terms pages say so on the site.
